

And finally, a glimpse into the presentations in the session organised by the author:

7 th April	9 th April	10 th April
	PDT 8h00 - 9h15 CET 17h-18h15 Nationalism, capitalism, international labour market
	Balázs Forman Corvinus University of Budapest Introduction
	Kaitlin Stewart*, , Political Burmanization: The Rise of the Taingyintha to National Identity in Myanmar
	Ahmed Bakry*, Heidelberg University, Anna Growe, Heidelberg University , Culture networks and their influence on cross-border interrelations The case of Upper Rhine Region, a EU cross-border region
	Jessie Yin*, University of Texas - Austin, China in Angola: labor, capital, and development discourse
	Hilal Kara*, Queen's University, "Saving the Day" in Troubled Times: Young Women's Survival, Mobility, Hopes and Aspirations in Turkey
	Tola Gemechu Ango*, Stockholm University, Child work in forest coffee production and crop guarding in Ethiopia: a critical analysis of social justice in Afromontane forest landscape
	Földrajz éjszakája 18h15-21h00 Budapest Modernizáció és urbanizáció Kelet-Ázsiában és ezek hatása a klímaváltozásra
	PDT 15h05-16h20 CET 04.10. 0h05-1h20 Urban development: urbanization, interests of social groups, justice, equalities in urban life	PDT 15h05-16h20 CET 04.11. 0h05-1h20 Transport as a source of complex social, economic and political conflicts.
	Balázs Forman Corvinus University of Budapest Introduction	Balázs Forman Corvinus University of Budapest Introduction
	Jeimy Arias Castano*, Université De Montréal, Analysing housing in Bogotá from and infrastructural framework.	John Bowen*, Central Washington University, Thein Htoo, Yadanabon University, Mandalay, Myanmar, Airline Networks and Development in Myanmar (1998-2020)
	Oren Yiftachel*, Ben-Gurion University, Double Polarization – Neo-Nationalism and the Urban Political Geography	Rebecca Shakespeare*, Tufts University, Urban and Environmental Planning and Policy, Maria de la Luz Lobos Martinez, LivableStreets Alliance, Disaggregating the Gendered Transportation Experience in Boston: Towards Equitable Urban Spaces

	Jota Samper*, CU Boulder, Informal Settlements as a Battlespace: NSAG urban territories in Medellín, Colombia.	Matthew Palm*, Worcester State University, Johanna Riddle*, Worcester State University, Decades to deliverance: addressing transportation inequity among carless households
	Mee Kam Ng*, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, Land shortage and tragedy of the commons in Hong Kong	Tianren Yang*, University of Cambridge, Unlocking the long-term potential of land value uplift in new subsidiary centres: How does planning matter?
	Ruth Sepulveda Marquez*, University College London, When the marginalised raise their voices: the fight of urban agriculture groups to belong in a neoliberal Santiago	Oforiwaa Pee Agyei-Boakye*, University of Minnesota - Minneapolis, A Review of Geographic Food Accessibility in Cape Town, South Africa
PDT 16h40-17h55 CET 04.08. 1h40-2h55 Transport during COVID 19	PDT 16h40-17h55 CET 04.10. 1h40-2h55 Urban development: urbanization, interests of social groups, justice, equalities in urban life II
Jacob Saindon*, University of Kentucky, The endless scroll: screen time and digital well-being in pandemic space-times	Balázs Forman Corvinus University of Budapest Introduction
Fei Li*, , Mobility and Travel Patterns of Vulnerable Populations during the COVID-19 Pandemic	Priscila Coli*, University of California Berkeley, The production of urban space as an authoritarian political project: An analysis of the urban development project for Cidade dos Meninos in the state of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil
DRISTI NEOG*, Westfield State University - Westfield, MA, Elham Shekari, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL, Jeffrey Brown, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL, Planning for Post Pandemic Public Transit	Thomas Christoffel*, Regional Intelligence-Regional Communities, LLC, Unaffordable: American 1950s Cold War Population Dispersion produced U.S. Highway Urbanism; Drive until you qualify
Miaoxi Qiu*, Arizona State University; Hainan University, Xuecong Fan, Arizona State University; Hainan University, Junyu Lu, Arizona State University, COVID-19 and Travel Behavior Changes in the Recovery Period of Pandemic in China: A Mixed Method Approach	Manqi Wang*, University College London, Fangzhu Zhang, University College London, Fulong Wu, University College London, Small-scale urban redevelopment in China: A case study of Yongqingfang in Guangzhou
Balázs Forman*, Corvinus University of Budapest, Similarities and differences in the spread of Facebook and COVID 19 epidemics in Hungary	Faisal Umar*, Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria., Defensible space and the practice of non-state policing within low-cost housing estates in a Nigerian city
	Johannes Kiener*, Saitama University, Analyzing welfare restructuring through the lens of the inner-city: Towards a comparative perspective on geographies of care in Osaka and Vienna

Balázs Forman

balazs.forman@uni-corvinus.hu