Internal Regulatory DocumentsPrinciples for the Drafting of Internal Regulatory Documents²⁷⁶*65/C. §

 - a) One single person shall be in charge of every individual document.
 - b) Documents shall be prepared in a manner consistent with the strategic goals set by the Maintainer and shall effectively support the realisation of such goals, i.e. the documents shall be expedient and effective.
 - c) Efforts should be made to simplify the documents so that they are clear and unambiguous, therefore - among others - the goal is not to repeat the legislative text but to reflect it at the institutional level.
 - d) The development and revision of a new document should focus on those areas where it is actually needed. Excessive regulation should be avoided.

²⁷⁶ Introduced under: Resolution number 07/2021 (27.01) of the Board of Trustees

- e) The drafting of the document should be preceded by comprehensive evaluation and analytical work, and the necessary consultations should be carried out.
 - f) The documents shall be prepared in Hungarian, and also in English, provided that the person professionally responsible for the document decides so, in agreement with the Head of Legal, Administrative and Regulatory Services. In case of any discrepancy, the Hungarian version shall prevail.
- (2) Adherence to these principles helps enable internal regulation to achieve its objectives, with as little bureaucracy as possible and cost-efficiently: to be able to give fast and accurate answers to university citizens regarding the matters, tasks and issues concerning them.
