The workshop contained 4 sections, connected to the major 4 fields of research projects conducted at CIAS: Economics, Business & Management, Social Sciences and Mathematics.

Dr. Előd Takáts, the Rector of the Corvinus University of Budapest, opened the workshop with his speech, where he highlighted the importance of the international research and networking opportunities, which are provided to every research fellow at CIAS. After the opening speech 4 senior, 4 junior, 1 invited distinguished, 2 non-resident research fellows and 3 research centres presented their ongoing projects.

The first section was chaired by Dr. Zoltán Oszkár Szántó, the Dean of CIAS. He is the leader of CIAS since its establishment and he draw attention to the growing popularity and interest for the research fellow grants. CIAS is becoming a colourful and prosperous research institute. In the academic year 2022/2023 CIAS gave home for 22 researchers from 17 different countries.

After every section there was a Q&A opportunity for the audience, where they could raise their questions to the speakers, and it led to very innovative and forward-looking discussions.

The main aim of this workshop was to provide an opportunity for the research fellows and the audience to get an overview of the current projects and topics of CIAS and to encourage collaborations in the future.
