Call for applications

for participation and scholarship support in long-term study mobility during the 1st and 2nd semesters of the 2027/2028 academic year and the Porto DD programme during the 2nd semester of 2026/2027 and 1st semester of 2027/2028

for participation and scholarship support in long-term study mobility during the 1st and 2nd semesters of the 2027/2028 academic year and the Porto DD programme during the 2nd semester of 2026/2027 and 1st semester of 2027/2028

Corvinus University of Budapest (hereinafter: the University) in accordance with the provisions set out in the Student Requirements – including Part 3: Study and Examination Regulations (hereinafter: SER), Part 4: Regulation on Student Fees and Benefits (hereinafter: RSFB), Part 9: Regulations on International Part-time Studies (hereinafter: RIPS) and Part 8: University Doctoral (PhD) Regulations (hereinafter: UDR), announces a Call for Applications for participation and scholarship support in long-term study mobility during the 1st and 2nd semesters of the 2027/2028 academic year and the Porto DD programme during the 2nd semester of 2026/2027 and 1st semester of 2027/2028, as set out below.

1. Purpose of the Call

The aim of this Call for Applications is to provide an opportunity for as many of the University's students as possible – those with excellent academic results who are capable of performing well at partner universities – to participate in the study mobility programme best suited to their goals. This international experience allows students to broaden their horizons, deepen their professional knowledge, and build international academic and professional networks that will also benefit their future careers.

This call applies both to the participation in a long-term study mobility (international part-time studies) and to the related financial support (scholarship), regardless of whether the financial support provided by the University is through the Erasmus+ Programme, University Foundation, or other internal revenue.

Participation in a study period abroad (i.e., a mobility place available under this Call for Applications) does NOT automatically entitle the student to financial support! The University first decides whether the student is granted eligibility and, if so, for which mobility place abroad. Subsequently, the University makes a separate decision on financial support—namely, whether or not to award a scholarship to the student for the mobility period, and if so, in what amount.

Section 9 of this Call for Applications sets out the provisions regarding financial support.

2. Legal and regulatory background

The general rules governing participation in international part-time study mobility are specified in the University's SER, RSFB, and RIPS in force at the time of publication of this Call for Applications, as well as the UDR and the operating regulations of the relevant doctoral school.

In addition to the above, the regulations applicable to individual programmes are defined in the following external regulations and other provisions:

2.1. In the case of the ERASMUS+ programme: the Erasmus Charter, the Erasmus Programme Guide, and the Grant Agreement between Corvinus University of Budapest and the Tempus Public Foundation.

2.2. Programmes based on inter-institutional cooperation agreements (bilateral or multilateral agreements) concluded outside the framework of the Erasmus+ programme:

2.2.1. In the case of CEMS, the rules for participation are determined by the common requirements established by the CEMS Alliance on the CEMS website and the application criteria listed on the University's website (further information: CEMS program).

2.2.2. For double- or multiple-degree programmes, the rules are stipulated in the cooperation agreements concluded with the partner universities (further information: Double Degree Programmes).

2.2.3. For other programmes based on inter-institutional cooperation agreements not covered by sections 2.2.1 and 2.2.2, the rules are governed by the cooperation agreement concluded between the universities.

The rules governing the recognition of credits are specified in the SER; for students enrolled in doctoral programmes, they are outlined in the UDR and the relevant doctoral school's rules of procedure. The process of earning and recognising credits is detailed in the mobility agreement (Learning Agreement) of the student participating in the mobility programme. Section 57 of the SER stipulates the procedure for the transfer of credits for courses completed abroad; in the case of double or multiple degree programmes, Section 56 (13) of the SER applies.

3. Type of application and eligible activities

Long-term study mobility refers to student mobility for study purposes based on a valid inter-institutional agreement. It is undertaken with the aim of earning credits at a specific host institution and country, with a duration of at least 2 months (60 days) and at most 6 months (180 days) per academic semester.

The period of study abroad must form an integral part of the student's degree programme within any study cycle. It must be aimed at obtaining a degree, fully recognized by the University, and proportionally aligned with the student's curriculum relative to the duration of the mobility.

During long-term study mobility, only the following activities undertaken abroad are acceptable:
• the completion of full-time studies as part of a bachelor's, two-tier or undivided master's, or doctoral programme leading to a recognised degree or qualification, involving the study of compulsory, elective, and optional modules. The mobility programme may not be used solely for the purpose of writing a dissertation (including the completion of a dissertation seminar) or for the completion of criterion modules;
• in the case of students enrolled in doctoral programmes, research work in support of dissertation preparation is permitted.

Applications cannot be submitted for mobility that has already commenced or been completed.
The destination of the mobility may not be the applicant's country of origin (or country of residence) or, in the case of dual nationality, either of the countries of citizenship.

Under this Call for Applications, only one application per student for a long-term study mobility is eligible for funding across the specified semesters. However, students participating in double or multiple degree programmes may be awarded a place and funding for two separate semesters.

4. Eligibility to apply

Applications may be submitted by full-time students enrolled in the University's bachelor, two-tier or undivided master's, or doctoral programmes who meet the following criteria:

4.1. they hold active student status at the University at the time of application and throughout the mobility period;

4.2. at the start of the mobility period, they have at least one (1) completed and closed semester at the University;

4.3. at the time of application, they hold a complex-type language examination at least at B2 level in the language of their planned studies (for detailed conditions, see point 5);

4.4. hold Hungarian citizenship, a registration certificate or a valid settlement or residence permit;

4.5. they do not receive a Stipendium Hungaricum or Diaspora scholarship covering tuition fees;

4.6. they have a cumulative grade point average of 3.00 or above for the programme covered by the application at the end of the first (autumn) semester of the 2026/2027 academic year (based on the credit-weighted cumulative grade point average of completed semesters);

4.7. in the case of participation in a CEMS programme, they also meet the CEMS application criteria specified by the CEMS Office;

4.8. in the case of participation in a double or multiple degree programme, they also meet the requirements of the partnership agreements concluded between the universities, as well as the application criteria for the double or multiple degree programme specified by the programme coordinators;

4.9. under the rules of the Erasmus+ programme, each student is eligible to receive an Erasmus+ grant for a maximum period of 12 months (360 days) per study cycle. Students who have previously received funding under the Pannónia Scholarship Programme may also be awarded a grant; participation in previous Pannónia long-term study, research, or traineeship mobility schemes counts towards the 360-day period, but participation in previous Pannónia short-term study and research mobility schemes does not.

5. Academic and additional conditions of application

Minimum requirements for participation in the Call for Applications:

- a cumulative grade point average of 3.00 or above for the programme covered by the application at the end of the autumn semester of the 2026/2027 academic year (based on the credit-weighted cumulative grade point average of completed semesters);
- a complex-type language examination at least at B2 level in the language of the planned studies (a list of acceptable language examinations is provided in Annex 5).

5.1. General conditions for all students enrolled in bachelor's, two-tier or undivided master's, and doctoral programmes

5.1.1. Students enrolled in a bachelor's programme, or a two-tier or undivided master's programme, must declare that, at the start of their studies abroad, they still need to complete at least 21 credits to obtain their pre-degree certificate, provided that compulsory internships and thesis seminars are not counted towards these 21 credits. Submitting a false declaration (i.e. stating that fewer than 21 credits need to be completed) will result in the immediate revocation of any positive decision on the application!

5.1.2. Students must submit a certificate or proof of language proficiency, required as a minimum condition for the application, as an annex to the application. The type and level of the language examination submitted as proof must also be indicated in the application form. If the working language of the mobility programme applied for is English and the student is studying in an English-language degree programme, it is not necessary to provide evidence of a B2-level, complex-type English language examination to meet the minimum application requirement.

5.1.3. If the intended partner university requires proof of language proficiency higher than the B2 level or the submission of a specific language examination (e.g. IELTS, TOEFL), the relevant supporting document must also be attached to the application. If the host university requires a valid language examination (e.g. not older than 2 years), the application will only be accepted by that university if accompanied by the required valid language examination certificate. Information on this can be found in the list of partner universities.

5.1.4. When applying, students may only specify an institution that offers a subject area relevant to the degree programme covered by the application (Annex 4 lists the subject areas that may be specified in relation to each degree programme). Students who are studying in more than one degree programme concurrently must specify in their application which programme they are applying for under the mobility scheme; during the assessment of the application, only their academic performance in the programme selected in this way will be taken into account, and they may only designate partner institutions related to this field of study in their application.

5.1.5. In the application, the applicant must draw up a list of preferences comprising a minimum of one (1) and a maximum of six (6) institutions from among those they have selected, specifying the subject area/field of study and the planned semester(s) of mobility (in the case of the Porto DD programme, the semesters). The order of preference and the selected academic semester(s) cannot be amended after the first stage of the application process (see Section 7.2.1).

5.1.6. Before submitting their application, applicants must ensure that the institution they wish to apply to does not impose any requirement(s) that would prevent them from studying abroad (e.g. a language examination requirement exceeding the minimum application criteria – a complex-type B2-level language examination in the language of instruction).

5.1.7. It is the student's responsibility, prior to submitting the application, to check the range of modules offered to exchange students at all universities applied to, in terms of eligible modules and credits to be earned for the period in question, as well as the language of instruction for the selected modules. If the course catalogue for the mobility semester is not available during the application period, students may refer to the course catalogues from previous semesters. Students participating in a part-time study programme abroad may only take courses at a foreign university that they have not yet completed at home.

5.1.8. If a student requests, in their submitted application, that other professional activities listed amongst the assessment criteria be taken into account, they must attach the relevant supporting document(s) in accordance with the table in Annex 1.

5.2. In addition to the above, specific rules apply to students enrolled in doctoral programmes

5.2.1. A doctoral student may only apply to a partner university from which they have, by prior arrangement, received an official letter of acceptance or a clear written statement confirming their acceptance, which has been verifiably issued by the cooperating partner (a lecturer or researcher affiliated with the institution in question).

5.2.2. The number of credits that may be awarded by the foreign host institution must not exceed the maximum number of credits specified in the UDR and the operating regulations of the relevant doctoral school.

5.2.3. A signed, detailed research plan and work plan in English must be uploaded to the application, in accordance with the requirements and template specified in Annex 3 of this Call for Applications.

5.3. In addition to the above, a student may nominate a CEMS programme institution, provided that:

5.3.1. they have submitted an application for the CEMS student place offered by the CEMS Office between 2 and 13 November 2026;

5.3.2. they are studying in the English-language Management and Organisation Master's programme, are participating in the CEMS programme, and their current application is for a semester to be completed at a foreign partner university as part of the CEMS programme.

6. Application documents to be submitted

PLEASE NOTE! Only documents in PDF format, which are complete in terms of the information they contain, fully legible and digitised, may be accepted for upload as annexes to the application.

6.1. Documents to be submitted by students enrolled in a bachelor's degree programme or a two-tier or undivided master's degree programme:

- E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility: the form must be completed in full and submitted via Neptun.
- A full copy of a certificate confirming a complex-type language examination at least at B2 level in the language of the planned studies must be uploaded. If the working language of the mobility programme applied for is English and the student is enrolled in an English-language degree programme, it is not necessary to provide evidence of a B2-level, complex-type English language examination.

- If the intended partner university requires proof of language proficiency at a level higher than B2 or the submission of a specific language examination (e.g. IELTS, TOEFL), the relevant supporting document must also be uploaded to the application. If the host university requires a valid language examination (e.g. not older than 2 years), applications to that university will only be accepted with the required valid language examination certificate. Information on this can be found in the list of partner universities.
- Certificates for other professional activities must be uploaded in accordance with Annex 1.

6.2. Documents to be submitted by students participating in a double or multiple degree programme:

- E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility: the form must be completed in full and submitted via Neptun.
- The certificate of foreign language proficiency or language examination required for the DD programme.
- The official statement or certificate confirming admission to the DD programme (decision).

No further professional assessment is carried out for students participating in a double or multiple degree programme.

6.3. Documents to be submitted by students enrolled in a doctoral programme:

- E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility: the form must be completed in full and submitted via Neptun.
- A full copy of a certificate confirming a complex-type language examination at least at B2 level in the language of the planned studies must be uploaded. If the working language of the mobility programme applied for is English and the student is enrolled in an English-language degree programme, it is not necessary to provide evidence of a B2-level, complex-type English language examination.
- If the intended partner university requires proof of language proficiency at a level higher than B2 or the submission of a specific language examination (e.g. IELTS, TOEFL), the relevant supporting document must also be uploaded to the application. If the host university requires a valid language examination (e.g. not older than 2 years), applications to that university will only be accepted with the required valid language examination certificate. Information on this can be found in the list of partner universities.
- A letter of acceptance or written statement from the host partner university must be uploaded.
- A Research and Work Plan must be uploaded in accordance with the requirements specified in Annex 3 of this Call for Applications (use of the English-language template is mandatory).

6.4. Documents to be submitted by students applying (also) for the CEMS programme

6.4.1. Documents to be submitted by students applying solely for the CEMS programme:

- E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility: the form must be completed in full and submitted via Neptun.
- Proof of the language examination required by the CEMS programme must be uploaded to the CEMS database.
- No assessment of other professional activities is carried out for students applying solely for the CEMS programme.

6.4.2. Documents to be submitted by students applying for both the CEMS programme and other partner institutions:

- E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility: the form must be completed in full and submitted via Neptun.
- A full copy of a certificate confirming a complex-type language examination at least at B2 level in the language of the planned studies must be uploaded. If the working language of the mobility programme applied for is English and the student is enrolled in an English-language degree programme, it is not necessary to provide evidence of a B2-level, complex-type English language examination.
- If the intended partner university requires proof of language proficiency at a level higher than B2 or the submission of a specific language examination (e.g. IELTS, TOEFL), the relevant supporting document must also be uploaded to the application. If the host university requires a valid language examination (e.g. not older than 2 years), applications to that university will only be accepted with the required valid language examination certificate. Information on this can be found in the list of partner universities.
- Certificates for other professional activities must be uploaded in accordance with Annex 1.

7. Deadline, place, method, frequency of application submission

7.1. Place of application submission

Applications – including the designation of institutions and the submission of the application form – must be submitted via the Neptun Integrated Study System (Neptun) as follows.

7.2. Deadline and method for submitting applications

7.2.1. In the first step, in the Neptun/Administration/Erasmus menu, students must select all partner institutions, the subject area associated with each institution, the expected start date of studies abroad, and the semester and duration (specified in months) of study abroad for which they wish to apply, and then specify their order of preference.
A maximum of six (6) institutions may be selected in total for this application.

The period for selecting institutions and determining the order of preference is: from 10:00 on Tuesday 17 November 2026 until 16:00 on Monday 30 November 2026.

Selecting the institutions does not yet constitute an application, but it is a prerequisite for submitting a valid application. The order of preference and the selected semester of study abroad cannot be amended retrospectively once the first stage of the application process has been completed.

7.2.2. In the second stage, based on the order established and finalised in the previous point, students may submit their application for a long-term study period abroad and for the scholarship supporting this period via the Neptun/Administration/Applications menu. This is completed by filling in the E401 – Application form for international part-time studies, long-term study mobility in full, uploading all the necessary certificates listed in Section 6 in PDF format, and submitting the application.

The submission period for the E401 application, together with its attachments, is: from 10:00 on Tuesday 8 December 2026 until 14:00 on Thursday 7 January 2027.

The above application may be submitted by students who have indicated their choices in order of preference (up to a maximum of six) from among the eligible institutions, as described in Section 7.2.1. The application applies exclusively to the institutions indicated and ranked in accordance with Section 7.2.1.

The two activities specified in Sections 7.2.1 and 7.2.2 – namely, the designation of institutions and the establishment of an order of preference, as well as the completion of the E401 application form in full and the submission of the required attachments in PDF format – TOGETHER constitute the submission of a valid application under this Call for Applications.

The above deadlines are strict; applications submitted late or with missing information will not be considered during the assessment process and will be rejected without substantive review. Applicants may rectify any omissions – on a self-assessment basis – until the close of the application period, i.e. by 14:00 on 7 January 2027.

If an applicant is unable to submit certificates for any professional activity by the deadline, it will not be possible to submit them at a later date.

Where a student submits more than one application, the application submitted last will be considered and assessed.

Under this Call for Applications, applicants may apply for both the autumn and spring semesters of the academic year 2027/2028, regardless of whether they wish to spend the two semesters at the same or different higher education institutions.

In all cases (with the exception of the Porto DD programme), applications will first be assessed in relation to the institution and the semester listed at the top of the preference list.

A place and funding may only be awarded for one semester under this Call for Applications (except for applications from students participating in the DD programme, in accordance with their contracts).

7.3. Frequency of application submission

In the academic year 2026/2027, there may be two application rounds, the first being the main call for applications (this Call for Applications) and the second a supplementary call for applications (the announcement of which is optional). During the first period (this main application round), applications may be submitted for long-term study periods abroad taking place in the autumn or spring semester of the academic year 2027/2028 (with the exception of the Porto DD programme), whilst in the second, optional supplementary application period, applications may be submitted for the spring semester of the academic year 2027/2028, exclusively for places remaining (unfilled) from the main application period.

In accordance with the decision of the call organiser, places remaining after the main application round may be re-offered during the application process as part of the remaining places allocation for those applicants who met both the formal and academic requirements in the main application round but for whom no places were available at the institutions indicated on their preference list. Applicants who do not select one of the places offered in this way by the specified deadline will not be able to participate in the mobility programme advertised for that semester; they will only be able to submit an application for the spring semester during the supplementary application period.

PLEASE NOTE! Applications submitted during the supplementary application period by students who have already been awarded a mobility place (grant) for the spring semester of the academic year 2027/2028 as part of the main application round will be rejected without substantive consideration.

7.4. Withdrawal

Students are required to notify the University immediately of any withdrawal from an awarded study period abroad via the Neptun form provided for this purpose.

In the event of a withdrawal, the place awarded cannot be transferred to another person.

If a student notifies the University of their withdrawal from the study period abroad via the specified Neptun form more than fifteen (15) calendar days after a positive decision has been made, or if they fail to notify the University of their intention to withdraw at all and this only comes to light subsequently, they shall be liable to pay a fee of HUF 45,000. Furthermore, the student shall be excluded from the next Call for Applications for long-term study mobility (except in cases of force majeure or upon presentation of a specialist medical certificate).

7.5. Extension

Applicants who have been awarded a place for the autumn semester within the academic year 2027/2028 may apply to extend their mobility period to the following spring semester of the academic year 2027/2028. Participation in several consecutive mobility programmes at the same higher education institution is permitted, subject to compliance with the RIPS, for students who still need to complete at least 21 credits during the mobility period affected by the extended semester in order to obtain their pre-degree certificate, and who do not exceed the maximum eligible period of 360 days as a result of the extended period. The following cannot be counted towards the minimum of 21 credits: compulsory internships, thesis seminars, and courses taken at the University under a preferred study load during the semester spent abroad as part of the study period abroad.

The rules applicable to the first semester spent abroad apply to the extension. Applications for the extension must be submitted via Neptun using the form provided for this purpose, after the start of the academic year and no later than 15 October 2027.
In the case of mobility programmes involving financial support, an extension of the study period abroad does not automatically entail a proportional increase in the scholarship; this requires an amendment to the contract. Failure to amend the contract will result in the loss of entitlement, in which case, the study period abroad may only be undertaken on a self-funded basis.

8. Evaluation of submitted applications and assessment criteria

The evaluation of applications is coordinated by the Study Administration Services or, in the case of doctoral programmes, by the University Doctoral Office. The Director of International Mobility decides on the allocation of the study period abroad and the corresponding funding. Students will receive official notification of the outcome in the form of a resolution via Neptun.

8.1. Applications submitted are assessed in accordance with the rules specified below

Applications will be rejected without substantive assessment for students who:

- are not eligible to submit an application in accordance with the criteria specified in Sections 4 and 5;
- do not meet the minimum requirements set for applicants;
- failed to complete any of the activities specified in Section 7: the designation of institutions and establishment of an order of preference, as well as the submission of a completed application form by the deadline.

Valid applications shall be assessed by the Study Administration Services (hereinafter: SAS) or, in the case of students enrolled in doctoral programmes, by the University Doctoral Office (hereinafter: UDO), in accordance with the assessment rules specified in Annexes 1 and 2.

If an applicant has not uploaded the certificates required for any activity specified in the application, or has uploaded them incompletely, or if their content or format does not comply with the Call for Applications, or if they do not serve to substantiate the relevant activity, or if they are technically faulty (for example, cannot be opened or are not in PDF format), that activity will not be assessed.

To determine the applicant's total score, SAS/UDO will calculate the applicant's credit-weighted cumulative grade point average for the autumn semester of the academic year 2026/2027 based on data from Neptun.

Based on the partial scores and the score calculated from the total (cumulative) adjusted credit index (rounded to two decimal places), SAS/UDO will total the applicant's scores.

With regard to the partial scores, students may submit comments via the Neptun platform within 2 days of receiving notification concerning discrepancies arising from the 'other professional activities' category and the scoring based on the academic average.

There is no right of independent appeal against the resolution of SAS/UDO regarding comments; such a resolution may only be challenged in an appeal submitted against the resolution announcing the final outcome of the application (resolution on the merits).

Taking into account the total score, the order of preference indicated by the applicant and the ranking rules, the Director of International Mobility shall decide on the awarded study period abroad and corresponding funding options, and shall set out this decision in a formal resolution.

Resolutions must be sent to students via Neptun; SAS/UDO is responsible for this.

Applicants must accept the higher education institution to which they have been allocated on the basis of their score and list of preferences.

Any applicant who provides false or inaccurate information, or makes such a declaration during the application process, will be excluded from the selection process.

8.2. The financial resources currently available will be allocated in accordance with the following principles

The University may award funding to successful applicants in accordance with the following order of priority, subject to the available budget.

8.2.1. Students participating in the CEMS programme are given priority over other students, subject to the available funding.
8.2.2. Next in line after CEMS students are those admitted to double or multiple degree programmes, in the order of their scores obtained in this application round, subject to the available funding.
8.2.3. Following the provisions of the previous two points, priority is given to students who have not yet held a successful application for a Pannónia or Erasmus+ long-term study mobility.
8.2.4. In the event of a tie, the student with the higher academic performance (cumulative adjusted credit index) will receive the funding.

The Director of International Mobility shall decide on the availability and allocation of the current funding.

9. Financial conditions of the application

Under this Call for Applications, the duration for which long-term study mobility can be applied for is a minimum of 60 days and a maximum of 180 days (except for DD programmes, subject to their contracts).

Students awarded a place and funding may receive the following financial support funded under the Erasmus+ programme, depending on the country they are travelling to, the duration of their mobility period, their mode of travel (e.g. green travel), and any additional support they apply for (e.g. equal opportunities).

If the University is unable to provide funding to a student who has been awarded a non-EU place, the student may undertake to complete the mobility period at their own expense; in this case, they will participate in the programme with 'Erasmus+ zero-grant' status. The student may indicate this undertaking in the form during the application process. This undertaking does not affect the student's position with regard to the allocation of funding; in other words, it will only be taken into account if the student has not been awarded funding.

The grant may consist of a base scholarship, a travel support and a top-up amount.

9.1 ERASMUS+ base scholarship

The exact amount of scholarship awarded depends on the country where the physical mobility takes place and its duration. In accordance with the programme rules, each month is calculated as 30 days.

Host country	Scholarship amount
I. country group Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, the United Kingdom, the Faroe Islands, Switzerland, Andorra, Monaco, San Marino, the Vatican	600 EUR/month
II. country group Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Greece, Latvia, Malta, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain	600 EUR/month
III. country group Bulgaria, Hungary, North Macedonia, Croatia, Lithuania, Poland, Romania, Serbia, Turkey	540 EUR/month
IV. country group Countries outside Europe	700 EUR/month

9.2. Travel support

Travel support is a single, lump-sum grant calculated based on the straight-line distance between the locations (cities) of the sending and host institutions, using the European Commission's official calculation tool. This distance refers to the one-way distance between the sending and host institutions and must be calculated using the Distance Calculator. The determined amount covers the return journey. Accordingly, the travel grant rates are as follows:

Distance	Travel grant for standard journey	Travel grant for green travel
10–99 km	28 EUR per person	56 EUR per person
Between 100 and 499 km	210 EUR per person	285 EUR per person
Between 500 and 1,999 km	309 EUR per person	417 EUR per person
Between 2,000 and 2,999 km	395 EUR per person	535 EUR per person
Between 3,000 and 3,999 km	580 EUR per person	785 EUR per person
Between 4,000 and 7,999 km	1,188 EUR per person	1,188 EUR per person
8,000 km or more	1,735 EUR per person	1,735 EUR per person

The amount of travel support is higher in the case of green travel if at least 51% of the total return journey is made using sustainable means of transport. In the case of green travel, the traveller is entitled to a one-off travel grant of EUR 50 and may also receive individual support for up to 4 additional travel days.

Green travel includes travelling by train, bus, carpooling, bicycle or other sustainable means of transport. Travel by ship or aircraft does not qualify as green travel.
Travel by car is eligible for support only in the case of car-sharing, regardless of whether the vehicle is powered by conventional fuel or electricity. Accordingly, eligible forms of travel include, for example, travelling through a carsharing service, or at least two scholarship holders travelling together in the same car, at the same time, within the framework of the same mobility period. In the latter case, a declaration made under penalty of criminal liability must be submitted.
The higher amount of travel support for green travel may only be requested on the basis of a declaration submitted before the start of the mobility period.
The forms required for both declarations are available for download on the University's International Opportunities website.
Green travel that was not declared in advance may only be recognised retroactively in exceptional circumstances arising from unforeseen external factors (for example, travelling by bus or train due to the cancellation of a flight), provided that the student notifies the University of the change before the original mobility end date. Any such change must be formalised through an amendment to the grant agreement.

Eligibility for green travel support is conditional upon the student presenting documents proving the journey (e.g. bus or train tickets) upon completion of the mobility period. Students are responsible for retaining these documents and presenting them at the end of the mobility period.

9.3. Additional financial support

Students who have already been awarded a place for a study period abroad may apply for additional financial support under the conditions determined by the Tempus Public Foundation. These are:

9.3.1. Top-up amount for participants with fewer opportunities

9.3.2. Inclusion support for participants with physical, mental or health-related conditions

The amount of this additional financial support (for students eligible under the fewer opportunities scheme or those receiving inclusion support) is EUR 250 per month.

Applications for these top-up amounts will open following the announcement of the results of the main Call for Applications. Further information about the additional support and the relevant call for applications is available under the heading “Supplementary Grants” on the University's International Opportunities website.
